THE BENEFITS OF PMS

- Faster inventory turns
- More efficient use of store operations
- Reduction in inventory paperwork
- Improved reorder levels and ordering
- Enhanced customer service
- Improved labor productivity

PMS Competitive Advantage

Faster inventory turns – reduce lead times by limiting inventory movement and improving the accuracy of inventory records

More efficient use of available store space – lower inventory costs by increasing available store space by more efficiently locating items in relation to receiving, packing, and delivery

Reduction in inventory paperwork – significantly reduce paperwork traditionally associated with store operations (e.g. receiving orders, arranging stocks), as well as ensure timely and accurate flow of inventory and information

Improved reorder levels and ordering – capture relevant data (e.g., frequency of movement, stock locations, etc.) to systematically schedule reorders. Such reorder level not only can improve the accuracy of inventory for ordering, but also can eliminate or reduce the need for complete, costly physical inventories

Enhanced customer service – streamline processes from order to delivery, accurately determine product availability and realistic delivery dates, and process returns efficiently

Improved labor productivity – maximize efficiency while reducing labor costs by incorporating several inventory checks quickly or by reducing inventory handling
